

Chinese (background)

Year 12 at Walford
Her Way

You will explore and develop your understanding of a range of contemporary Chinese social issues. You will study topics such as the environment, ageing population, migrant workers, contemporary Chinese writers, film and Chinese people in Australia from reading articles and watching visual texts. You will learn to research, analyse and examine these issues from different perspectives and justify your opinions by using credible information. You will develop your writing skills through writing compositions in different text types, including article, formal letter, email and speech. You will also have the opportunity to undertake investigative tasks on topics of interest.

Stage 2
20 Credits

 Engage Skills	 Extend Knowledge	 Enrich Experiences
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Interact in Chinese on a range of contemporary issues • Research, analyse and compile information • Examine social issues from different perspectives • Keep developing critical thinking skills • Write compositions in Chinese in different text types: article, formal letter, email, speech • Reflect on aspects of culture/society • Undertake an in-depth study on interested topics • Further extend listening and reading comprehension 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Environment • Ageing population • Migrant workers • 'One Belt One Road' • Contemporary Chinese writers • Education and employment • Generation gap • Literary devices • Text types 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Read a range of articles and novels and watch visual texts on diverse contemporary issues. • Research areas of interest • Further your understanding of contemporary Chinese society

 Assessments/Outcomes	 Pathways
Folio: Text production, interaction and text analysis In-depth Study: Written response, oral presentation and reflection in English Oral and written examination	Academic research and collaboration, cultural liaison, tourism, overseas internships and study opportunities, translating and interpreting, immigration services, education, business, creative arts exchange, multicultural support services Multilingualism and intercultural understanding are highly useful transferable skills in our increasingly multicultural society and global world