

Margaret Adams Scholarship

Background

The Margaret Adams Scholarship is presented by daughters, Eleanor and Claire, in memory of their mother. Both daughters are proud Walford old scholars.

Margaret believed every woman should have access to a well-rounded education in order to become her best, whether that be in traditional pursuits or by breaking the glass ceiling. Margaret chose Walford to educate her daughters so they were well prepared to pursue their talents and interests with confidence, passion and grace.

Margaret was intelligent, caring, and an active participant in her home town of Echunga in the Adelaide Hills. She served on numerous committees and supported local groups including membership of the local Country Fire Service, Community Hall and the Anglican Diocese of the Murray. Margaret was a committed Walford parent who enjoyed the role of class representative in her daughters' junior school years.

One of her greatest honours was being elected to serve the School in the highly distinguished role of Chair of the Council of Governors from 2000-2003 and 2005, which she performed with dedication and great expertise.

A librarian in her professional life, Margaret was an avid book lover who was able to pursue her passion in her work; she delighted in being a reliable source of book recommendations. A keen traveller from a young age, she visited many places around Australia and the globe and was able to appreciate the vast landscapes of the Flinders Ranges as much as the history and cultures of the many countries she visited.

It is the hope of Eleanor and Claire, that this scholarship will support a deserving girl to receive her best education enabling her to find her own passion and path in life through knowledge, sport, caring for others, friendships and active participation in her community.
